

Who we are

Forecasting Consultants LLC is a private weather forecasting company that each semester takes on several interns and helps them propel their career forward. We are offering a workshop that will help students prepare for life after college.

- Our mentor hosting the course is an adjust professor and a published author, The Evolution of Meteorology: A look into the Past, Present and Future of meteorology.
- Professionals in different fields will be guest presenting during workshops.

All Training Sessions: Late Afternoon/Evening - All Individual Meetings will be independently scheduled

For Students:

If you find yourself asking these questions, then this training may be the perfect fit:

- Am I prepared for Interviews? Do I know how to network?
- How do my accomplishments rank in the real world?
- Where is my career job marketing trending?
- What will I do if I cannot find a job?

Overview of Program:

Basic Business Skills

Most recent college graduates are unfamiliar with proper techniques and etiquette around an office.

Students will learn basic business skills such as time management, organization, finance tracking, marketing, and etiquette.

Self - Promotion

This portion of the workshop will go through networking, maximizing education, accomplishments, etc.

Students will learn how to present themselves professionally. They will also learn interview skills and resume development.

Individual Mentor

Each student will have one-on-one time with the mentor. During this time, they will develop and/or research a specific field that is directly relative to the student. Such as conducting job trending research, writing an article and conducting research, etc.
